

This is a conversation between Ralph Allison and Charity, a Professor CIE.

HOMOSEXUALITY

Ralph: Now in this they put homosexuals. Homosexuality is Charity: That is not a mental illness. You have been a homosexual in your prior lives.

R: This we have a political battle about this all the time, about whether or not somebody is born homosexual or whether they become that way. Would you care to make any statement about why some people are innately attracted to a person of the same sex instead of the opposite sex?

C: Each human has to experience all avenues of everything. When you were going through your lives, the ones that are starting now or condemning the homosexuals, will be homosexuals themselves.

R: This will be one of their lifetimes, whether they choose it or not?

C: Of course

R: Ten percent of the population are homosexual, if you add them up. In any culture, any group, any nation, about 10% prefer the same sex for their attraction. And they just happen to be the group who have ???

C: They don't have a problem

R: Well, we have the religious right who look in the Bible and it clearly says in the Bible that man should not do that. God disapproves of that. It says so right there.

C: Show me where it says that.

R: I'm not going to pull the Bible down because I'm not a religious writer but I've heard it quoted but you can find anything quoted too, but

C: We have already stated

R: Man wrote it.

C: Right. The Creator does not care.

R: The real thing is as many books I have on Jesus teaching, people writing these manuals were writing to large groups, not to individuals, and in large groups, homosexual behavior does not keep children being produced, so that is not good for increasing the work population. So they wouldn't want that since you wouldn't have enough children to do all the jobs you have in an expanding economy. So its not good for the group. But for that 10% it's fine.

C: It was written by man.

R: Written by man, OK. We don't have a God up there that hates homosexual, is that what you are saying?

C: The Creator does not hate.

R: Well, you can hear all these people on TV talking about what He doesn't want.

C: It is what the humans want and they use the Creator to by stating that – they are always using Him

R: They use him as a bully boy, somebody with a bat who is going to hit you if you don't do what they want.

C: Why would the Creator design some humans with homosexuality and some that are not? Some are gifted in music and some are not. Why did the Creator not design all humans to be the same?

R: He could have.

C: He could have if He had chosen to but that would have negated our responsibility.

R: It would have been very boring, you wouldn't have had much to do.

C: Yes, we've been busy.
